President's Message

Dr Maria Hill

Arrived back from my overseas trip just in time to attend our wonderful Women's Literary Festival. What a stimulating program with interesting speakers it was, thanks to the enormous effort put in by our Festival Director Dr Wendy Michaels and the festival subcommittee. So a big thank you to all those involved. Also congratulations to Felicity Pulman for being awarded the SWW Di Yerbury Writers Residency in the UK. For those of you who missed out on attending the festival, you can read about it in the Summer edition of our wonderful magazine Women's Ink!. I am slowly recovering from a gruelling two month research trip involving climbing cliff faces to reach Bulgarian gun positions and observation posts, such as the 'The Devil's Eye' overlooking the British line at Doiran, in deepest 'Macedonia' or rather the 'Former Republic of Macedonia'. I dare not say 'Macedonia' for fear of igniting an international incident - as the name is still hotly contested. It is amazing what writers will endure to gain insight and inspiration for a good story. Mine is to be based on the Salonika campaign of 1915. Our guest speaker this month, Adriana Koulias, regularly undertakes research trips around the world and will be discussing how this experience has helped inform and shape her fabulous writing. This month we also have the announcement of the winner of the 'Rosalind Sharbanee Meyer Encouragement Award,' plus a member talk by Rosalind herself. There's also our great value workshop on the very important topic of 'finding your voice' presented by Lisa Heidke - chick lit author extraordinaire. Make sure you are there!

Great to be back with you, Maria.

There are more photos from the day on p5 and there will be a full roundup of the festival in the Summer edition of Women's Ink!

Workshop

Finding Your Voice in the First Novel Lisa Heidke

How do writers find their unique 'voice'? How do you decide whether first, second or third person narrative works best for you? How can you develop a distinctive voice and achieve consistency in your writing?

This workshop will offer practical tips on how to harness your passion and strengthen your writing confidence so that your writing style is uniquely yours.

Once upon a time, Lisa Heidke made a New Year's resolution to write a book. Like most people, Lisa woke up on January one with a headache. Unlike most people who'd made resolutions the night before, she took two Nurofen and started writing.

The result was Lucy Springer Gets Even (A & U, 2009), followed by What Kate did Next (A & U, 2010), Clan-dia's Big Break (A & U, 2011), and Stella Makes Good (A & U, 2012). Her fifth novel, It Started With A Kiss, is due out January, 2015.

Luncheon Speakers

Member Talk:

Rosie's War: Escape from Singapore 1942

Rosalind Sharbanee Meyer

Rosalind Sharbanee Meyer's writing career spans more than forty years. She worked in the advertising industry in Australia and England and has written and published four books.

The tragic death of her son Peter, who suffered from paranoid schizophrenia moved Rosalind to produce a book A Window into Schizophrenia, a record of Peter's life and death. Peter loved hearing the stories of his mother's extensive family and their days in Singapore, and these stories became the memoir that is the subject of her Member Talk. The Peter Meyer Fund was established in Peter's memory and in 2014 she established the Rosalind Sharbanee Meyer Encouragement Award with SWW NSW, to foster new Australian writing talent.
